Knowledge Center Hot Topics: NeoCon 2011 Edition

6 06 2011

If you're headed to NeoCon, or even if you're not, we've culled some interesting insights before the Show. Take a look!

Need help specifying furniture for a healthcare project? Look no further. The Center for Health Design has just published a furniture checklist based on the principles of evidence-based design. Publications like this are just the reasons IIDA is honoring the Center for the work it does to improve the quality of patient care. Come to our annual meeting to see Rosalyn Cama accept the Star Award on behalf of the Center.

For a preview of our Think.Different. presentation at NeoCon, check out Navigating the New Normal. Our panel of experts discusses how their firms are negotiating the new economic climate.

Before attending Matt Petersen's NeoCon keynote address, why not get a feel for the work his organization does by checking out the Holy Cross Project blog? See what Global Green USA is doing in the Lower Ninth Ward.

Dianne Juba, GSA's Interior Design Program Manager, is a panelist at the IIDA/Tandus forum on sustainability in government design to be held during NeoCon. Last November, Susan Szenasy interviewed Dianne about the GSA Workplace Transformation program and how GSA designers are planning to tackle the department's zero environmental impact initiative.

Are you ready to hear optimistic news about the economy? Check out BIFMA’s 2011-2012 projections for the U.S. office furniture industry.

Stay tuned for a weekly wrap up highlighting the hot topics of the design industry by Jane Larkin, MLS, the Manager of Knowledge and Online Architecture at the International Interior Design Association Headquarters Office
