GRAND RAPIDS, MI--2/90 Sign Systems has partnered with experts to develop a new sign system that's all about safety. Originally designed for behavioral health environments, SafeCare™ Signs are ideal for any facility where safety or durability are key factors, including healthcare facilities, schools, and prisons. They're currently the only American-made signs featured in the New York State Office of Mental Health Safety Standards.

Each SafeCare sign is made of Lexan, a durable material which prevents it from breaking and being used as a weapon. Beveled edges eliminate sharp edges, and subsurface paint and graphics guard against tampering in high-traffic and vandalism-prone areas. The anti-ligature signs can be securely installed with tamper-resistant Pin-In-Head Torx fasteners, plastic anchors and adhesive. Other mounting options, such as spanner fasteners with butterfly anchors, are also available.

“Signs may not be the first thing people think of when they’re looking for ways to make an area safer,” says Rebecca Tyke, Marketing Director at 2/90 Signs. “However, in most facilities, they’re all around us. By studying ways to eliminate sharp edges, tampering, and breakage, our SafeCare Signs can help make environments safer for everyone who interacts with them.”

Available in 16 designs for a variety of applications, the full line of SafeCare Signs will be unveiled in Phoenix at the Healthcare Design Expo + Conference in November 2018. The products are available for order through 2/90 Sign Systems and select signage dealers nationwide.
